FELLOWS' ORIGINAL
WORM LOZENGES.
WE can with confidence point to "FELLOWS' WORM LOZENGES" as the most perfect remedy for those troublesome pests,

INTESTINAL WORMS.

After years of careful experiment, success has crowned our efforts, and we now offer to the world a confection without a single fault, being safe, convenient, effectual and pleasant. No injurious result can occur, let them be used in whatever quantity. Not a particle of calomel enters their composition. They may be used without further preparation, and at any time. Children will eagerly devour all you give them, and ask for more. They never fail in expelling Worms from their dwelling-place, and they will always strengthen the weak and emaciated, even when he is not afflicted with worms.

Various remedies have, from time to time, been recommended, such as calomel, oil of wormseed, turpentine, &c., producing dangerous and sometimes fatal consequences. After much research, study and experiments, embracing several years, the proprietors of FELLOWS' WORM LOZENGES have succeeded in producing this remedy, free from all objections, and positively safe, pleasant and effectual. They do not kill the worms, but act by making their dwelling-place disagreeable to them. In order to assure consumers of the genuineness of these Lozenges, the analysis of DR. A. A. HAYES, State Assayer, is annexed:—

"I have analyzed the WORM LOZENGES prepared by Messrs. FELLOWS & CO., and find that they are free from mercury and other metallic or mineral matter. These Lozenges are skilfully compounded, pleasant to the taste, safe, yet sure and effectual in their action. Respectfully, A. A. HAYES, M.D.
Assayer to the State of Mass."

Important to Lumbermen AND

Owners of Hemlock Lands.

THE AMERICAN PATENTED IMPROVEMENT TANNING COMPANY of New York own the exclusive right in the United States for the manufacture of an imperishable "EXTRACT" from Hemlock Bark for tanning purposes. The Bark Extract is now extensively used among Tanners, and the demand for it is rapidly increasing. It commands a ready sale in the Boston, New York and Philadelphia markets, at sixty cents per gallon. The appliances for manufacturing are simple and not expensive, costing but little more than the ordinary leaches used by Tanners. By this process 1½ cords of bark may be reduced so as to concentrate the entire strength into forty gallons of Extract, without in the slightest degree injuring its tanning qualities, and at a cost not exceeding one dollar per cord. The saving in freight alone, between the transportation of the Extract and the Bark, will range from six to eight dollars per cord, so that any one who may get out but three hundred cords of Bark per year, may save from two thousand to twenty-five hundred dollars in the difference in freight.

The Company does not propose to sell Territorial rights, but will grant exclusive privilege to manufacture in certain localities, charging a small royalty per gallon on the amount manufactured.

The Company will send competent men to superintend the construction of works, where parties desire to enter into the business, and to instruct in the manufacture of the Extract.

As a guarantee of success to parties entering into this business, the Company will contract to take all the Extract manufactured under their process at fifty cents per gallon, delivered in Boston or New York.

Parties in Maine desiring further information as to terms, &c., may call upon or address CHARLES HALE, General Agent for Maine, 24 Main street, Bangor, where models of the apparatus may be seen.

NATIONAL BANK FAILURES.

First National Bank of Attica, N. Y. Failed.—Merchants' Nat'l Bank, Washington, D.C. Failed. National Union Bank of Rochester, N. Y. Closing. Venango National Bank, Franklin, Pa. Failed.

COUNTERFEIT—FIRST NATIONAL BANK NOTES.

20s; a close imitation of the genuine notes, and well calculated to deceive. The back of the bill is rather coarse. The plate liable to be altered to any of the National Banks.

HIGHLAND NATIONAL BANK OF NEWBURG, N. Y.

100s, counterfeits are in circulation. A fac-simile of the genuine bill, but the engraving is not so fine. They are dated May 15th, 1865; Letter B. The green ink in the back of the counterfeit is paler than that in the genuine. Be careful and examine well all before taking them, as they have deceived some of our best judges.

UNITED STATES LEGAL TENDER NOTES.

10s, imitations—poorly done; engraving coarse, and the bills look blurred. The green ink used is lighter than the genuine. The dies and 20s are one-eighth of an inch larger than the genuine.

NATIONAL BANKS.

1s, altered to 10s—vig's of 1s, two female figures with hands clasped, one pointing upwards. 10s, having figure of Franklin drawing electricity from the clouds; and on the back of the bill is DeSoto discovering the Mississippi. On back of 1s, is the Landing of the Pilgrims. Well done.

50s, altered from 5s: the 5s have vigs. on each end—and landing of Columbus on back. Look out for this alteration.

NEW YORK, March 8.

The Tribune's special Washington despatch says—

Gen'l Grant has sent the names of Gens. Schofield, Sickles, Sheridan and Thomas to the President as Commanders for the Districts, under the Reconstruction bill. The 5th one, which will be General Hancock or Ord, has not been selected. Thomas Brown of Ohio, will be appointed to the vacancy of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, March 8.

The late Congress provided that hereafter no person shall be appointed as policeman in Washington who has not served in the army or navy of the United States and received an honorable discharge.

NEW YORK, March 8.

The Custom House officers have seized another letter containing about $8000 worth of diamonds belonging to the same man whose diamond letter was seized some days since. Hoping to get the letter by paying the duty, he informed on himself and told the time the letter was expected.

The New Tariff on Wool and Woolens.

The only measure affecting the tariff which the Thirty-ninth Congress was able to agree upon, was Mr. Bingham's tariff on wool and woolens, passed by the House on the 27th of July last. The bill is simply extracted from the general tariff bill passed by the House on the 12th of July, and would have been superfluous had that measure prevailed. The tariff upon clothing wools valued abroad at 12 cts or less was 3 cents per pound; valued at 13 to 24 cents, 6 cents per pound. The new tariff raises these rates to 10 cents per pound and 10 per cent advalorem. On combing wools the tariff was 12 cents per pound and 10 per cent: and is reduced to 10 cents per pound and 10 per cent for wools valued at 32 cents or less. On carpet wools, the tariff ranged from 3 to 6 cents per pound, and is raised uniformly to 6 cents. On sheepskins the duty is raised from 20 to 30 per cent ad valorem, and on woolen rags from 3 to 12 cents per pound. On woolen cloths the tariff is changed from 24 cents per pound and 40 per cent ad valorem to 50 cents per pound and 35 per cent. Blankets, yarns, &c., on which the duties were 24 cents per pound and from 25 to 30 per cent ad valorem, are classified according to their cost abroad, the dividing points being 40, 60, and 80 cents, and charged with 20, 30, 40, and 50 cents per pound and 35 per cent ad valorem. Bunting instead of 50 per cent is charged 20 cents per square-yard and 35 per cent. On dress goods the duties are increased 2 cents a yard and 10 per cent ad valorem. On ready-made clothing the tariff is advanced from 24 cents per pound and 40 per cent ad valorem to 50 cents per pound and 40 per cent. On webbings, bindings, and trimmings generally, an additional duty of 50 cents per pound is imposed. On carpetings the tariff per yard is considerably reduced and a uniform duty of 35 per cent advalorem is imposed. The duty on oilcloths is increased 5 per cent and on oiled silks 10 per cent ad valorem.

This general advance of the tariff on wool and woolens is substantially what was agreed upon at the convention of wool growers and woolen manufacturers held at Syracuse on the 13th of December, 1865. The manufacturers, it is known, hoped at that meeting to obtain a concession upon those wools which are not grown to any extent in this country—such as the combing wools, chiefly procured in Canada and England, and the carpet wools, chiefly imported from Turkey, Syria and Egypt. They were met however by a demand for an advance on all unwashed wools, except carpet wools, from 6 to 20 cts per pound with an additional duty of 20 per cent ad valorem. The result of the convention was an agreement to an advance to 10 cents per pound and 10 per cent advalorem, coupled with a corresponding advance upon woolen goods. The intent of this agreement is of course to enhance the price of domestic wools and at the same time to save our manufacturers by enhancing the price of woolen goods. If this result is realized, the consumers of woolen goods in this country, including the farmers, will have to pay according to the estimate of Commissioner Welles, 71 millions of dollars more per annum for their goods. The Commissioner of Agriculture, in his Monthly Report for January, reviews Mr. Welles' estimates and sets down the cost of the increased duties at 24 millions. Even 24 millions is not an inconsiderable sum. But Mr. Welles' main objection to the bill is, that besides increasing the cost of every man's clothing, they will "seriously impair the immediate gold revenue of the government, and thus delay the abatement or removal of the various internal and duplicated taxes on domestic industry which are the real sources of the troubles under which the wool grower, as well as every other American producer, now labors."

It is said that Secretary McCulloch advised the President to sign the bill, "because it would do something to break down the movement for high protection." We hope it will have that effect. This is no time for experiments, either in the direction of free trade or protection. Our tariff must match our taxes. The laws ought to be careful y drawn up by a commission and then amended only on grounds of the most evident necessity.

[By Cable to Associated Press.]

A Fenian Attack in Ireland.

London, March 6.—The government has postponed the day fixed for the presentation of its reform bill from the 11th to the 18th of March.

The Fenian agitation in Ireland has been renewed and is increased. A meeting of several hundred Irishmen near Dublin has been dispersed by the troops. The telegraph wires have been cut in various parts of the country.

Advices from the Cape of Good Hope bring the sad intelligence that Dr. Livingstone, the celebrated African explorer, has been killed by Caffres.

The case of the United States against the ex-confederate steamer Alexandria has been decided by the admiralty court in favor of the American government.

Dublin, March 1.—An attack was made by a body of Fenians upon the Drogheda Barracks yesterday. The attacking party was received with great gallantry by the military and police stationed there, and several volleys were given the assailants, who retired in confusion, losing a number killed and wounded, whom they took from the field. The repulse was complete. Several government forces were wounded, including three police.

London, March 6.—The Fenian have torn up the rails and blocked up the roads between Cork and Dublin, completely suspending railroad travel between those cities.

The government does not feel any alarm at the aspect of affairs, as very efficient measures have been made and are now making to suppress all attempts at an insurrection throughout the island.

Anecdote and Humor.

A certain member of Congress from one of the Eastern States, was speaking one day on some important question, and became very animated, during which sat a brother member, his opponent on the question, smiling. This annoyed him very much, and he indignantly demanded why the gentleman from —— was laughing at him.

"I was smiling at your manner of making monkey faces, sir," was the reply.

"O, I make monkey faces, do I? Well, sir, you have no occasion to try the experiment, for nature has saved you the trouble!"

The hammer was heard amid a roar of laughter.

A Rochester urchin unconsciously perpetrated a great joke at the expense of his teacher the other day. The lady was announcing to her pupils the holiday on the 22d, and asking them some questions concerning its observance, among others why the birthday of Washington should be celebrated more than that of any one else, "Why more than mine," she said, to a little fellow eager to explain. "Because," he explained, with great vivacity, "because he never told a lie."

"It's all very pretty talk," said a recently married old batchelor, who had just finished reading an essay on the 'Culture of Woman,' just as a heavy milliner's bill was presented to him,—"it's al very pretty, this cultivation of women; but such a charge as this for bonnets is rather a heavy top-dressing—in my judgment."

People boast of success—even the smallest but we learn wisdom from failure much oftener that from success. "Often," says a philosophical writer, "we discover what will do by finding out what will not do. He who never made a mistake, probably never made a discovery."

A correspondent of the Louisville Journal treats at some length on the best way to prevent hydrophobia. A wag in reply suggests that he once prevented a case of this dreadful malady, by getting on a four rail fence and staying until the "dog" left.

FINES FOR LIQUOR SELLING. Major Jones, Chief State Constable, reports the amount of fines, to the credit of the Constabulary throughout the State during the month of January, as $8,661 85; in February $16,151 15; total $24,813, chiefly from liquor prosecutions. About $1000 comes under the head of costs.—[Journal.

THE STATE CONSTABULARY. From the report of the operations of the Constabulary throughout the State during the week ending March 3, we extract the following: 15 liquor dealers discovered, 23 notified, 75 discontinued, 68 prosecuted, 2 for violation of the Sunday law and 2 for illegally transporting liquors. Liquor Seizures—Suffolk county, 23; Middlesex, 3; Hampshire, 3; Norfolk, 1; Barnstable, 1; Bristol, 3; Worcester, 1; total, 35.

In addition to the amount of fines paid in for liquor and other prosecutions by the Constabulary, $1950 was paid on liquor cases in the Superior Court at Salem on Wednesday.—[Boston Journal.

WASHINGTON, March 7.

The republican members of the Senate held a caucus this afternoon, to consider the question of general legislation at this session, and the propriety of agreeing to the House proposition for an adjournment from next Monday to May 6. The sentiment of the entire caucus, with two or three exceptions—36 members present—was very decided against a reassembling either in May or any of the summer months, and there was a pretty general concurrence in the idea that when an adjournment takes place it should be till fall, and not earlier than the middle of October. Mr Fessenden favored meeting again on the first Monday in November, but some Senators thought two weeks earlier would be better, and finally, on Mr Wilson's motion, the whole question was laid on the table. This action is to be interpreted as expressing the opinion that the time has not yet arrived for deciding when an adjournment shall take place, and it may be considered as settled that the Senate will not consent to adjourn before the close of next week, or the first of the week following, and will vote by more than five to one against meeting in May, or earlier than October, unless the situation very materially and most unexpectedly changes within the next five or six days.—Sp. to Boston Advertiser.

The appropriations made at the last session of Congress foot up $144,393,000. This does not include sums given by general bills in which specific appropriations are not named.

Among other provisions of a new naval bill is one, providing that the number of midshipmen allowed at the Naval Academy shall be one for every member and delegate, of the House of Representatives, one for the District of Columbia, ten at large and twenty-five to be selected annually from boys enlisted in the navy, and who have been one year in the service on board naval vessels, should so many be found qualified.

Another section provides that so much of the act for the education of steam Engineers as provides that Cadet Engineers, when appointed, shall be under eighteen years of age, and shall have been employed at least two years in the actual fabrication of steam machinery, shall be repealed. The bill further provides that the Commandant of the Marine Corps shall have the rank and pay of a Brigadier General of the Army

A Board of Commissioners have reported at length in favor of annexing Roxbury to Boston. This would give Boston an extended area, with 30,000 additional inhabitants—now nearly or quite 200,000. In 1790, it was only 22,000.

Republican Caucuses.

The Republican Voters of Bangor are requested to meet at the City Hall, next SATURDAY evening, at 7½ o'clock, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Mayor.

MOVEMENTS AND INDICATIONS AT WASHINGTON. A despatch of the 6th to the Boston Advertiser says that a bill for the admission of Colorado was introduced in the Senate, and an effort was unsuccessfully made in the House to get a reference of the tariff bill to the new committee on ways and means. It was evident from the temper of both bodies that there is not yet much disposition to take up general legislation.

The Republican caucus of the House on the 6th was attended by about 120 members. Gen. Banks was chairman. A caucus of about 20 radicals was held in the evening, at which John Covode, behind whom stood Gen. Butler, endeavored to get an indorsement of the project for referring the impeachment question to a select committee of 13, to be composed of seven members of the last judiciary committee, who are in the present Congress, and six new men. Messrs. Wilson of Iowa, Eliot, Ames, and one or two others, took strong ground against this project, and the meeting broke up without action. The intention had been, if the proposition got an indorsement, to move it in the House; but this, of course, was not done. Various State delegations held meetings in the afternoon, and the sentiment against the Butler-Covode scheme was decided. The proposition was brought forward again in the evening in full caucus, and voted down by nearly three to one. A resolution in favor of a recess till the middle of October was voted down by a large majority.—Mr. Stevens moved that when the adjournment takes place it be till the 8th of May, and after a long debate this was carried by 80 to 37. Mr. Pomeroy then moved an adjournment on Monday next, and this was finally carried by 57 to 54. The impeachment investigation is to remain in the hands of the judiciary committee.

The act for the relief of iron-clad contractors, as agreed upon in conference committee, and signed by the President, authorizes the Secretary of the Navy to investigate all claims for building war vessels and steam machinery under contracts made between May 1, 1861, and Jan. 1, 1864, and report to Congress the names of the contractors, a description of the work, the contract price, the increased cost over the contract price, the amount of such increased cost caused by the delay of action of the government, and the amount already paid each contractor over and above the contract price.

The election in Alexandria passed off without serious disturbance. The negro votes, not received by the commissioners of election but by commissioners appointed for that purpose, number 1323, cast solid for Turner, the Republican candidate for Mayor. The white votes received and recorded amount to 1157, of which 56 were cast for Turner. The Republicans propose carrying the matter into the courts or before Congress, and a bill declaring the election invalid was introduced into the Senate on Wednesday.

How It Appears Abroad.

Mr. Editor:

The following extract from a private letter recently received from one of the old and most valued residents of Bangor, now removed to a neighboring State, will serve to indicate how our city and her resources appear when viewed from a distance. H.

* * * * * *

"I take the Bangor Courier, and from that I learn, that the question of building the dam is still agitated, but not with so much prospect of success as I should be glad to see. You know I am one of the believers in that enterprise, and that I regard it almost indispensable to the prosperity of Bangor.

If I were a resident of Bangor I should be very likely to advocate the proposition to donate the $200,000 asked for from the city, believing it would be well invested, and would ultimately, and at no distant day repay principal and interest in the increased taxable property of the city.

I learn by the papers that a beginning has been made upon the railroad east of Bangor, and that now that enterprise is pretty sure to succeed; also, I see that an interest is awakened in favor of the railroad to Piscataquis County. These measures if completed, must be favorable to the business of Bangor, and assist in the development of the interior of the State. I still feel a good deal of interest in Bangor and its people, and I presume, I never shall become indifferent to them.

In January I passed some two weeks in Manchester, N. H., as a juryman, and while there improved my opportunity to visit the public schools, Reform School, and other institutions and also the factories. I was very much pleased with the schools.

* * * * * *

In witnessing the indications of wealth and prosperity in Manchester, resulting from the partial development of her water-power—far inferior to that of Bangor—I could but wonder at the short sighted and mistaken policy of the last named city, with vastly greater power, and ten times the territory depending on it for a market, to allow so great opportunities for indefinitely increasing her population and wealth to remain so long neglected and unimproved. I hope it will not always be so."

The New Hampshire State Election takes place on Tuesday next, the 12th inst. The Democrats have made an active campaign, and will put forth all their strength—but we see no good reason to doubt that the Republicans will elect General Harriman for Governor and carry the other branches of the State government by their usual majority.

Among the changes of the committees in the present Congress, Mr. Fessenden is relieved, at his own request, from the chairmanship of the finance committee, and placed on the committee on foreign relations, which consists of ... Fessenden, Cameron, Morton, Patterson of New Hampshire, Cole and ... Johnson. Mr. [illegible]

... of Representatives in Congress." The N. Y. Tribune trusts the 40th Congress will be able to survive this severe blow, but revives the unpleasant reminiscence that the treason of Bright was so glaring that even Garrett Davis aided in kicking him out.

Gen. Butler's Remarks upon Impeachment.

In the House debate of Thursday, General Butler said:

"I assume from the action of the 39th Congress, and the report of the Judiciary Committee, that there is reasonable cause for the investigation of the grave charges made against the President of the United States by the gentleman from Ohio, and that this Congress would be false to the country, and false to the principle of the American Government, if it shrank from the investigation. I would not have troubled the House with a single observation if it had not been that new points have been thrown into the case by the condition of public affairs.

The first is the point that was made by the member from New York (Mr. Brooks). when the House was being organized, that this House is not a constitutional body for the purpose of legislation, because a portion of the States that have not destroyed themselves are not represented. I wish to answer to that. That first Congress of the United States, which counted votes and declared George Washington President of the United States, had not, when it assembled, a majority of members in each House, there being then but nine States in the Union. It adjourned from day to day until it got that majority, and the moment it got that majority it proceeded to the grave business of organizing this government by making Geo. Washington President, and going into general legislation. If a bare majority of the members of the States then composing the Union could make George Washington President, cannot this House unmake Andrew Johnson?

A grand jury consists of 23 men, and the proceeding is likened to that of an inquest. Thirteen may only need be present when a bill is presented if twelve will vote for it; and I assume that if the report of the learned Judiciary Committee of the last House is to be trusted, (and who doubts it?) that whenever this House does vote on the final report there will be an absolute majority of the same voting in favor of impeaching Andrew Johnson for high crimes and misdemeanors.

Another point to which I wish to call the attention of the House is the misconception with which I think the report of the committee of the last House has been received. That committee reported "That there were grave charges and evidence to sustain them, and we have been tauntingly asked why the committee took two months to find that out, and why it did not report progress."

I think that the committee was referring to evidence which the public knew not of, and therefore the committee did not desire to make a full report, although it might well have reported on the grave charges which all men know—the usurpation of executive power, the usurpation of legislative power, the returning of the immense amount of material which belonged to the rebel communities to the men composing the same rebel organizations, without authority of law. Those are open and known to all men. Even the gentleman from Ohio (Spaulding) must have heard of them, however much he may have slept over the events of last year. In my judgment, a sufficient indictment and charge might be made on them, and they are great matters on which the House will be called to vote.

The custom of Parliament has ever been to find impeachments on common fame and common reports. The current history which is the evidence on which all governmental action is based, is the evidence on which this impeachment shall be based, so far as the facts are spread on the judicial legislation or the executive records of the country. I think it of very little consequence whether there be any secret crimes charged against the President, because I am willing to take up the gauntlet thrown down by the gentleman from Ohio, (Mr. Spaulding,) and I say that if any man stands in the way of the great march of this country to honor and glory, to peace, to amity, to happiness, to liberty, and to law, he must be taken out of the way by constitutional methods."

TRIAL OF SAFES. A trial of fire-proof safes came off yesterday in Lincoln Park, in this city. There were three safes; one of the Tremont Company's, Marland's patent, No. 6; one of Tilton & McFarland's No. 9; and another of the same make and size, containing Sanborn's steam improvement, all new safes; and a sheet iron trunk, 16 by 20 inches, also containing Sanborn's improvement. These were all placed in a row, the two containing the steam apparatus between the other two.

Papers were placed in each of these safes and in the trunk, and fires were kindled soon after 6 o'clock in the morning. At twelve o'clock we visited the place and found the fires briskly burning, men being engaged in heaping wood upon them. At that time smoke was issuing from the outside safes, and steam from the centre one; the trunk we could not see, for it was buried up in live coals to the depth of near a foot. Between two and three o'clock in the afternoon the fires were raked, and the safes and trunk allowed to cool off.

At half past five o'clock in the afternoon the trunk and safes were opened in the presence of the committee, and a large concourse of citizens. The trunk was opened first, and the contents, which were in a small tin box, placed inside of the trunk, were all safe—not a paper being singed or even smoked, and the tin box bore no marks of fire. The water in the metalic tubes was not exhausted, showing that steam could have been generated for a much longer time.

The next one opened was the Marland safe. The papers were all destroyed and the wood work was all charcoal. Then the Tilton & McFarland safe, without the steam apparatus, was opened, and the moment the inner door was opened a sheet of fire broke out, which burned until all the wood work was consumed.

The last one opened was the Tilton & McFarland safe with Sanborn's apparatus. The papers enclosed in the tin box inside were in perfect order, and so were those in the wooden drawer. The fire seemed not to have touched the inside of the safe, and the water in the tubes was not exhausted.

The trial appeared to give satisfaction to all who witnessed it. We presume the committee, which was composed of some of our most prominent citizens, will make a report upon the matter.—[Press.

Our Democratic friends are somewhat puzzled at their latest experience of Johnsonism. They thought they knew the man as having once been a "true Democrat", and still having a hankering after his first love; but recent events shake their confidence.—Thus, the Belfast Journal says:

The mysterious dispensations from Washington, by which the bitterest radicals displace conservatives, still continue. John H. Rice is nominated and confirmed as Collector of Bangor, and Jere. Fenno succeeds Butler as Assessor of Internal Revenue in the Fourth District. The key to these incomprehensible movements is in radical hands; if anywhere, as Democrats know nothing about it. In some of the most important offices in the State, the very radicals who were last summer removed have been reinstated! We used to read something in speeches about kicking radicals out of office, but this kicking them back again is a change in the programme, and one which is not an improvement.

We don't think President Johnson loves the radicals any better than formerly—but just now he is on his good behavior."

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILL.

To give the public a clear understanding of the mode in which SCHENCK'S Mandrake Pills produce those wonderful effects which are attested by thousands of reliable witnesses, we present a brief and its functions, which will make the operation of this popular medicine perceptible to every man's understanding.

The liver is supplied with blood vessels, nerves and absorbants. One of the obvious uses is to secrete and prepare the bile. It likewise filters the blood and separates that fluid from all impurities. How indispensably necessary to health is the proper performance of this function! If the liver is diseased, it cannot purify the blood, and if that is sent back through the lungs, brain and other parts in a morbid condition, it must cause jaundice, biliousness, obstruction of the kidneys, gravel, and many other complaints more or less painful and dangerous, but the least of them quite enough to make a man sick and uncomfortable, and unfit for the performance of any of the duties of life. This unhealthy state of the system very often ends in pulmonary consumption.

The circulation of the blood is conducted in this manner:—The heart sends the vital current down through the arteries; it passes through the flesh, taking up all impurities in its progress; then the stream of blood flows backward through the veins, and passes to the liver to be purified. It is impossible to cure consumption, scrofula, or scarcely any other kind of ulceration while that important organ, the liver, is diseased. It is for that reason that "regular physicians" rarely cure consumption. They usually begin their treatment with the use of some cough medicine, the basis of which is morphine or opium in some shape, which locks up the liver instead of relaxing the secretions, giving a tone to the stomach, and producing a healthy flow of bile. Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills, will strengthen the system, purify the blood and ripen and heal ulcers on the lungs.

A volume would be required, to give a brief account of the remarkable cures performed by Dr. Schenck's medicines, viz: Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills—all of which are accompanied by full directions for the use of them.

DR. SCHENCK will be professionally at his rooms every week, 32 Bond street, New York, and 35 Hanover street, Boston, from 9 A. M. until 3 P. M. He gives advice free, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is five dollars. His medicines are for sale by all druggists and dealers. Also a full supply at all times at his rooms. Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, each $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents per box.

TO MILL OWNERS.

Hoisting & Canting Machine,

FOR HOISTING LUMBER

Upon Gang Edger Tables.

BY this machine lumber is hoisted upon EDGER TABLES, to be edged, after passing through the Gang Sawers, by water or steam power thereby saving all the hard lifting labor of edgers, as is well known so arduous in saw mills.

Two men will edge from two to three thousand feet more lumber in a day with, than with out, and do it much easier.

Whether sawing large or small lumber, it hoists the largest as well as the smallest sticks quicker than can be done by hand, and with no more effort than to handle one inch boards. In fact this machine hoists the heaviest timber with ease and rapidity, that is surprising and gratifying to see.

A greater labor-saving machine has not been invented in a century, the value of which can never be computed in dollars and cents.

Every one who pays his money for this machine will receive back again its entire cost by its use in one season, and in most cases in one half that time.

They are strong and durable machines and will stand constant use for years.

OUR CARRIER. It should be borne in mind that the carriers of the Whig have no papers to sell, or give away, on their routes Persons who endeavor to get papers from them are simply inducing them to be one dishonest and steal from their employers.— If such cases exist in the future we shall certainly take measures to bring the parties to justice

MR MILLS' MEMORIAL We were unable to be present at the meeting at City Hall on Thursday evening to listen to the reading of the memorial of Mr Hiram F Mills upon the development of our State resources—but we learn that notwithstanding the storm there were some two hundred citizens present, who listened with much satisfaction to the facts, representations and suggestions embraced in the memorial, and passed a vote of thanks to the author at the conclusion

—About six inches of snow fell here on Thursday, making our sleighing very good —but it will be short lived, as the sun works it away rapidly We learn that the logging teams in the woods have had an excellent chance for the last few weeks, and are doing a great business Probably the number of logs cut will be quite as large as anticipated in the fall—the good weather of March compensating for the delays from the want of snow in December

WINTERPORT. Editor of the Whig:— The citizens of Winterport, regardless of sex or age had a grand jollification on the evening of the 6th inst, at the Commercial House on the return of their Representative, T H Cushing, Esq., and over the recent annexation of a part of Frankfort to Winterport, and the charter of the Winterport Railroad Company

At 10 o'clock the company sat down to a supper fit for a king, prepared by "mine host," C R Merrill, who has recently taken the Commercial House and repaired and refurnished it in fine style.

After satisfying the inner man with the savory viands a speech of welcome and congratulation was made by Hon Otis Kaler, who presided on the occasion, which was responded to by John Halsey, T H Cushing, Esq, (who rehearsed briefly the doings of the Legislature,) Wm R. Morrill, John Lord, Hon T Cushing, Dr Abbott and others It was as if friends long separated had met and recounted the scenes of the past and the prospects of the future The divorce of the two ends of the village, decreed by the Legislature in 1860, having been set aside by the Legislature of 186", the reunion was like to a new wedding, and "all went merry as a marriage bell"

The conclusion was, that the Railroad to Bangor must be built, and Winterport must be a great town ONE OF THEM

A GOOD OLD SOLDIER AND A GOOD SUBSCRIBER The Farmington Chronicle has a subscriber (Mr Lemuel Jenkins of Temple) who was a soldier of the war of 1812, and also of the war of the Rebellion—serving throughout both wars with bravery and credit He had with him in the last war two sons, three grandsons and two sons in law, comprising every male in the family line He is now 72 years of age, hale and hearty, and has yet to lose his first meal of victuals from sickness He offers to give the man who will give a better account of himself a good dinner

—The Belfast Sentinel says the Schooner Norice sailed for Boston about the 20th of January, and no intelligence of her was received until Thursday last, when a despatch dated at Wilmot, N S, stated that she had been seen bottom up near Margaretsville, about forty miles northeast from Digby — W H Johnson was master of the Norice. The crew consisted of a man named Smith, Lawrence Marshall, and a son of the master

—Some little excitement was created on Tuesday afternoon at Boston, at the Boston and Maine freight depot, on discovering that three barrels each contained a dead human body The discovery was accidentally made by the head of one of the barrels breaking out, and that of a human being seen inside The barrels were directed to "John W Saxton, Brunswick, Me," and it is stated that they came from Pittsfield, via the Western and Worcester Roads The bodies are for dissection at the Maine Medical School at Brunswick, and have been forwarded

—Judge Clifford, of the U S Supreme Court, has returned to Portland, after an absence of three months, as we learn from the Press

—Hon. Joseph Farwell was elected Mayor in Rockland on Monday last, by a vote of 631, to 11 scattering

NARROW ESCAPE Wednesday afternoon a runaway horse, attached to a sleigh, was racing through Portland street, and in attempting to turn up Hanover street, passed between a staging and a building, on the corner of the street, tearing down a large portion of the staging, On the other part of the staging, which was some thirty feet from the ground, three men were at work, and the spectators who witnessed the scene expected to see them dashed to the earth — But that portion providentially stood, the workmen standing thunderstruck at the wreck around them —[Press.

NOMINATIONS The Boston Journal correspondent says

The Senate in executive session referred to the Finance Committee the appointment of N Wells as Assessor of the 2d District of Massachusetts, F Stone, Assessor of the 5th District of Massachusetts, Jesse T Leybord, Collector 2d District of Maine, David Holme, Collector of the 5th District of Maine.

ROBBERY IN NORTHPORT Jonathan Elwell, who resides at Brown's Corner, discovered last week that he had been robbed of about $1000 in United States bonds and specie Mr Elwell, who lives alone in his house, and is reputed to be thrifty in money matters, kept the valuables in a trunk, which he concealed in an ash hole in the cellar — This became known to some boys in the neighborhood, the eldest not over sixteen years, and watching a time when Mr Elwell was absent, they entered the house, and carried off the whole. One of the bonds was offered at a store in this city, and thus a clue obtained which led to a discovery of the rest. We learn that the greater part has been restored, and that the loser proposes to let the matter drop on being made whole.

The sum will then amount to £384,000.

Somebody.

Over the wide rolling sea,
There is a heart beating for somebody
This thought's a solace to me,
Somebody's thinking of somebody
Desolate, hopeless, alone,
Still I am cherished by somebody
One heart responds to my own,
What were this life without somebody?

Bright hopes have vanished and fled
Dark is life's path to somebody
Faith brings me naught in their stead,
Save the remembrance of somebody
Often despair fills my soul,
Yearning too 'tis for somebody
While the dark clouds o'er me roll
Starless the sky seems to somebody.

Every cloud hideth a ray
Sunshine may yet beam on somebody
"Sorrow is but for a day"
Long though the time seems to somebody
Hark! o'er the wide stretching main
Hope whispers softly to somebody—
Once there'll be meeting again—
Oh! then how blest will be somebody!

BET'S MATCH-MAKING.

The only time I ever tried match making in my life was when I was seventeen, and I then so burned my fingers over the business that I took care never to meddle with it again. I was living at the time with my step-mother on her farm near Ballymena. My father was dead, and my step-mother did not like me. She had placed me for a time with a milliner in the town, but finding it expensive supporting me apart from her had taken me away again. She was thinking of a second marriage, though I did not know it at the time. But this I did know—that she had written to some distant friends of my father in America who had unwillingly consented to take me off her hands.

I don't think it would have been half as hard for me to have made up my mind to die, for I was a shy little thing, without a bit of courage to deal with strangers and my heart was fit to burst at the thought of leaving the very few friends whom I had to love, and my own little corner of the world, where the trees and road knew me. But I felt it would have to be done and I lay awake all night after the letter arrived trying to think how I should ever be brave enough to say good by to my dear friend Gracie Byrne, and to Gracie's lover, Donnell M'Donnell.

Gracie was the cleverest of all Miss Doran's apprentices. She was an orphan without a friend to look after her, and she was the loveliest girl in the country.—People said she was proud and vain, but I never could think she was either. She and I loved one another dearly, though I could not think what attracted her to poor little plain me. She had plenty of admirers, and she queened it finely among them, but the only one to whom I would have given her with all my heart was Donnell M'Donnell. And oh, dear! he was the very one she would not look at.

Donnell and I were great friends, and I had promised to do all I could to help him with Gracie. He was young and strong, and as bonny a man as could be seen. He had a fine farm, all his own, some three miles across the country from my step mother's place. If Gracie would but marry him she should live like a lady, and drive into Ballymena on her own jaunting car. But she was always saying that she would go away to London, and be a great 'West End' milliner. This terrified me badly, seeing that London is such a wicked place.

My step-mother was always crying out that Gracie would come to a sorrowful end, which made me wild, and as I lay awake that wretched night I thought a great deal about what might happen to her if she went away to London by herself, and she so handsome, and not a friend at all. And I wished with all my strength that she would marry Donnell M'Donnell before I went to America, which would ease my mind about her, and also about him. For I felt the greatest pity in the world for kind big Donnell's disappointment.

My step mother was provoked at my sad face next day, and called me ungrateful. But when I cried bitterly she got a little kinder, and in the evening allowed me to go into Ballymena to see my friend Gracie. So towards sundown, when the snow was getting red upon the fences, I wrapped my shawl about me and set off for the town, sobbing loudly to ease my heart, all along the lonely road, where there was no one to hear me but the robins. The brown trees against the dusky red sky, the white swelling lines of the fields, the dark chimneys of the town on before me, where all blent in a dismal maze, when who should leap over the stile and stand beside me but Gracie's great lover, Donnell. I told him my eyes were all watering with the cold, and he turned and walked along side of me for a good way, while we talked of Gracie of course. He was very angry with her, and said she was playing fast and loose with him, and making him the sport of the town and country. I took Gracie's part and so we went on till we came to the last white gate on the road, and began to meet the town's people. Then I told him I was going away, and he looked so vexed that I nearly cried again. I felt so glad to see him sorry.

'Well, little Bet,' said he, 'we must give you a good dance over in yon big farm house of ours before you go. And in the meantime—'

'I'll see to your business, Donnell' said I smiling. 'Never fear but I'll do your business to the last.'

Then he shook my two hands till he nearly squeezed them into jelly, and left me.

When I went into Miss Doran's it was past the work hour, and the girls were putting on their bonnets to go away. Gracie only was sitting close to the candle putting the flowers on a ball-dress for one of the country ladies. She having the nicest taste, had always the honor of giving the finishing touches to the most particular work. She looked very tired, but oh, so handsome, with her pale cheek against the yellow light, and her dark head bending over a mass of white and rose-color tulle.

'A bud here,' said she, 'and a spray there and then I have done. You'll come home with me and sleep. That cross step mother of yours won't see you again to night.'

'Don't talk that way, Gracie,' said I; but I came intending to stay. And the work being finished we went home to her lodgings.

A lovely bunch of flowers was lying on her table, and she laughed and blushed, and looked beautiful when she saw it.

'Who is it from, Gracie?' said I. 'Donnell?'

'No indeed,' said she tossing her head. But I was sure that was a fib, for she looked as happy as possible, lying resting herself in her arm chair beside the fire, while I set out the tea-things. She looked so glad, and the shabby room looked so snug and our little tea-drinking being so cozy I could not bear to tell her the bad news and began to set about Donnell's business.

'Gracie,' said I, 'I wish you would marry Donnell soon.'

'Soon?' said she opening her eyes and looking at me angrily. 'I'll never marry him!'

'But you know, Gracie,' said I getting hot about it, 'that you ought to marry him. She says—that is, I know—you have made him the laughing stock of the country, and—'

'Very fine,' cried she. 'And so he has been complaining to you, has he?'

'I did not say that,' said I, 'but oh, Gracie I know you like some one. I saw you smiling over a letter the other day, just as you are smiling now.'

'And what if I do?' said she, laughing and tossing her head, 'that does not prove that it must be Donnell.'

'There is no one else so good,' said I eagerly. 'It could not be any one else.'

'On my word,' said she, staring at me, 'I think you had better go and marry him yourself!'

'[illegible]' said I, starting up and sitting down again, and beginning to cry, 'I wanted to tell you that I am going away to America.'

... the front of my black frock. She kept me with her after Gracie had gone down stairs, holding my hand, and asking me about my going to America. And the place felt so safe and warm, and she was so kind and motherly after what I was accustomed to at home, that my heart got so sore that I could scarcely bear it.

We had a great tea drinking in the parlor, and then we went out to the kitchen, and the pipers fell to work, and Gracie was as amiable as possible to Donnell. But just in the middle of our dancing, the latch of the back-door was lifted, and Squire Hannan walked in in his top-boots.

'I wanted to speak to you on business, M'Donnell,' said he, 'but I will not disturb you now.'

'Will you do us the honor of joining us, Sir?' said Donnell. Squire Hannan needed no second invitation. He was soon making his bow before Gracie, and Donnell saw no more of her smiles that night. She danced with the squire till it was time to go home, and then, after she had set out for town, escorted by him and her other beaux, Donnell's mother kissed me, and Donnell drew my arm through his, and walked home with me across the snowy fields to my step mother's house. He was abusing Gracie all the way, and I was, as usual, taking her part.

He came to see me one day soon after, and brought me a basket of lovely winter pears. He leaned against the wall and watched me making butter. He was disgusted with Gracie, he said, she was a flirt, and he did not care a pin about her, only he would not be made a fool of. She had refused to let him walk across the hills with her next Sunday to the consecration of the new church, and if he did not get some token that she had changed her mind between that and this he would never, he swore, look her way again, but go and marry some one else for spite.

'Oh no Donnell,' said I, 'promise me you won't do that.' For I was sure that Gracie liked him all the while.

'But I will,' said he smiling, at least if other people will have me.

'Oh, don't don't!' said I. But he would not promise.

'It's my mind,' said my step-mother, after he had gone, 'that yon lad's more like a lover of yours than hers. Why don't you catch him and then you needn't go to America.'

'Mother!' I cried, and felt the room spinning round with me till I caught and held on by the door.

'Well, well,' she said, 'you needn't look so mad. Many a girl'd be glad of him.'

I thought a great deal about how he had sworn that he would marry some one else, if he did not hear from Gracie before Sunday. 'I'm sure she likes him,' I thought 'she can't help it. She must have seen how mean even Squire Hannan looked beside him the other night. And it would be a most dreadful thing if he was married to some one he did not care about, and if she went off to London, with a broken heart, to be a 'West-end' milliner.' I thought about it and thought about it. There was no use going to Gracie, for she would only laugh and mock at me. All at once a bright idea came into my head.

I was afraid to think of what I was going do, but that night, when my step mother had gone to bed, leaving me to finish spinning some wool, I got out a sheet of paper and a little note of Gracie's which I had in my work box, and began to imitate Gracie's hand writing. I had not much trouble, for we wrote nearly alike, and afterwards I composed a little letter:

'Dear Mr M'Donnell—I have changed my mind and will be very glad if you will join me on the road to the consecration on Sunday.

Yours sincerely, GRACE BYRNE.'

'What harm can it do to send it? I thought, trembling all the while. I folded it up and put it in an envelope directing to Mr Donnell M'Donnell, Buckey Farm. 'And it may do such a great deal of good. In the first place it will prevent his marrying for spite before Sunday, and she will be so glad to see him coming, in spite of her crossness, that she will be quite kind to him. He is always so stiff and proud when she treats him badly that I am sure it makes her worse. She will never find out that he got any letter—not, at least, till they are quite good friends—married perhaps—and then they will both thank me.'

So the next evening, about dusk, I slipped quietly into the town and posted my letter. I was dreadfully afraid of meeting Donnell or Gracie, but I saw no one I knew. I dropped the note in the letter box and rushed off toward home again at full speed. I ran nearly all the way, the snowy roads were slippery in the evening frost, and near our house I fell and hurt my foot. A neighbor found me leaning against the style and brought me home. I was to have sailed for America the very next week, but now I was laid up with a sprained ankle, and my departure was put off.

On Sunday evening a neighbor woman who had been at the consecration came in to tell us the news. This one had been there of course and that one had been there for a wonder. Gracie Byrne had been there in a fine new bonnet (the girl was going to the mischief with dress,) and Squire Hannan had been there, and given her a flower out of his button hole. 'And Donnell M'Donnell was with her of course,' said I.

'Ah, 'deed you may swear to it,' said the woman. 'That'll be a match before long. He walked home with her to the town, and her smiling at him like the first of June.'

'They'll be married before I go away,' said I to myself, and I leaned back in my corner, for the pain in my foot sickened me.

Donnell's mother brought me a custard and some apples the next day.

'Donnell's gone to the Glens, my dear,' said she, 'or he would ha' been over this mornin' to see you. He went away before he heard of your foot and he won't be home for a week.'

'What's he doin' there?' asked my step-mother.

'He has land there you know,' said Donnell's mother, 'and he goes whiles to settle his affairs with them that has charge of it. I don't know rightly what he's gone about now. Something has went again him lately, for he's not like himself those few days back. He said something about goin' to be married when he came home, but if he is it's not after his heart, for I never saw a bride-groom so glum on the head of it'—But, dear I thought it was you that he liked.'

'So he does, Mrs M' Donnell,' said I, 'but not that way—not for his wife.'

'Well, well, my dear!' said Donnell's mother wiping her eyes.

Everybody was coming to see me now on account of my foot. Gracie came the next day or so, and surely I was amazed at the glory of her dress! My step mother who did not like her, left us alone together, and Gracie's news came out—She was going to be married on next Tuesday.

'I know that,' said I.

'How do you know it?' said she.

'Donnell's mother told me.'

'Donnell's mother! Nothing but Donnell and Donnell's mother from you forever! How should she know?'

'Oh, Gracie, his own—'

'Why,' she burst in, 'you don't imagine that he's the man? Why, it's Squire Hannan! Only think, Bet, of your Grace being the Squire's lady!'

I was quite confounded. 'Oh, oh, Gracie!' I stammered.

'Well,' said she sulking, 'are you not glad?'

'Oh yes,' I said, 'very on your account, but what will become of Donnell?'

'Donnell again. Now listen to me, Bet. I know when a man likes me and when he doesn't like me, just as well as any girl; and I've seen this many a day, that Donnell didn't care a pin about me. Nor he he only wanted me to marry him, that the people might not say I jilted him. I told him that [illegible]

... Hannan until she went away. And somehow I never had felt as little sorry to part with her before. She seemed not to be my own Gracie any longer.

And now I was nearly out of my senses, thinking what mischief might come of meddling—I was sure that Donnell and Squire Hannan would fight and kill one another, and all through me. I thought I would give all I had in the world to see Donnell before any one else had told him the news, and confess to him what I had done. On Tuesday, about mid day, a countryman from the Glens came in to light his pipe, and he said he had passed M'Donnell, of Buckey Farm on the way.

'An I think things must be goin' badly with him,' said he, 'for he has a look on his face as black as the potato blight.'

'Somebody has told him, maybe!' said I to myself. And I put on my shawl, and borrowing a stick from an old neighbor, I hobbled off secretly up the road towards the Glens. I soon got tired and dreadful cold, as I could not walk fast, and I sat down on a bit of an old gray bridge to watch for Donnell coming past. At last he came hundering along, and although it was getting dusk I could see that he had his head down, and looked dreadfully dark and unhappy.

'Donnell!' said I calling out to him.

'Who's that?' he said. 'Why, it's never little Bet!'

'But indeed it is,' said I. 'O, Donnell, did you hear? I came to tell you. Gracie was married this morning to Squire Hannan.'

'Whew!' he gave a long whistle. 'The jilt!' said he and he snapped his fingers. But his whole face brightened up.

'She's not so much of a jilt as you think, Donnell,' said I, 'for—oh, how can I tell you!—it was I who wrote you the note you got last week, and she had nothing to do with it. I did it for the best, I did indeed, for I thought that Gracie liked you, and oh, Donnell, sure you won't go and kill Squire Hannan?'

'Won't I,' looking awfully savage. 'I cut a great blackthorn this morning in the Glens for no other purpose but to beat out his brains.'

I gave a great scream, and dropping my stick, fell along with it, but Donnell picked me up and set me safe on his horse behind him.

'Now,' said he, 'I'll tell you what it is little Bet. I'll make a bargain. You'll marry me, and I won't touch Squire Hannan.'

'I marry you?' cried I, after Gracie. 'Indeed I will not, Donnell M'Donnell.'

'I've behaved badly,' said he, 'but I'm very sorry. It's long since I liked you better than Gracie, but the devil of pride was in me and the people were saying she would jilt me. When I got your bit of a note I felt as if I were goin' to be hung. God bless Squire Hannan. Now will you marry me, little Bet?'

'No,' said I. And with that he whipped up his horse, and dashed off the speed of a hunt. He never drew rein till the horse stopped at the dear Buckey Farm house door, when he carried me straight into the bright warm kitchen where his mother had the tea set out, and the cakes smoking ready for his return.

'Talk her into reason,' said he putting me into his mother's arms. 'I want her to marry me, and she says she won't.'

I did my best to keep sulky for a proper length of time, but it was the hardest thing I ever tried to do, and they both so kind, and the place so bright and cozy, and I being so happy on the sly all the time! So the end of it was that I did not go to America, and that I am Mrs M'Donnell of the Buckey Farm. But I never tried match-making again.

There is an anecdote told of an elephant in the Jardin des Plantes, in Paris, which illustrates the exquisite sense of smell with which elephants are endowed. The interior of an elephant's trunk is lined with an immense olfactory nerve, by which the animal is able to detect the faintest odors at a distance. He finds that the orange flower yields the most delicious of all perfumes, and travellers state in Japan elephants may frequently be seen burying their trunks in the foliage of orange trees to enjoy the fragrance. Recently, the large elephant in the Jardin des Plantes suddenly ceased picking up the bread and cake offered to him by the visitors of the garden drew in his trunk, and continued to follow along the railings of his inclosure a lady who was carrying in her hand a boquet of orange flowers. The lady's attention was called to his movements and she at once held the boquet within his reach. The elephant seized the flowers, inhaled the perfume with great delight for several moments, and—here comes the least credible portion of the story—again put forth his trunk and restored the boquet to the lady. One understands an elephant's passion for sweet smells, but hardly comprehends his manifestation of gallantry and good breeding.

Special Notice!

To Soldiers and Seamen

The Law Has Passed!

Bounties Equalized.

Justice Done the Early Soldiers and Seamen of the War, their Widows and Heirs!

NOTICE has been sent me from Washington that the Law equalizing the bounty to Soldiers and Seamen was passed Saturday last by Congress.

I am now authorized and prepared to obtain Bounty for every Soldier and Seaman or for their Widows and Heirs.

Application made personally at my office or by mail—the discharge of the Soldier or Seaman should be handed in—as it must be forwarded with the application.

All applications must be made, witnessed and sworn to, AFTER THE PASSAGE OF THIS LAW. Many soldiers have been induced to sign papers before the law passed. This is irregular, fraudulent and void and papers in such cases must be made over.
